

ABSTRACT

In a substrate testing device, a testing unit acquires a tested result of a substrate by scanning of an electron beam. An alignment mark detecting unit optically detects an alignment 5 mark on the substrate. A substrate position calculating unit calculates a substrate position within the substrate testing device from a position of the alignment mark. A position aligning unit aligns a position of the tested result with the calculated substrate position.